PANAMA CITY (UPI) — The Organization of American States (OAS) announced today it had settled the main points of the Panamanian crisis. But an immediate development when Panama rejected its aid for a new canal, the 1903 treaty under which the U.S. occupies the canal zone.

ONLY A FEW hours after the OAS announced the success of its efforts to halt the fighting of the past four days in which 23 men have been killed and nearly 400 injured, a Panamanian official said the 10-mile wide canal zone should be trimmed and "excess" land returned to Panama for future development.

Edwin Velarde, press secretary to President Roberto F. Chiari, said Panama "sees room for the present width of the zone." He said Panama considers "unjust the treaty which gave the U.S. the right to rent the canal in perpetuity." He [there could be no restoration of good relations with the U.S. until Washington is to a revision of the zone treaty.

Physical Fitness Of Purdue Challenged By Y Students

"Can BYU students meet minimum physical fitness standards?"

The Daily Universe is interested in this question and will spearhead a drive to find the answer. ASBYU student-body President R. Richards Rolapp and Universe Editor Bruce L. Olsen will issue a formal challenge to Purdue University within the week to compare student physical fitness.

COMPETITION WILL BE for both girls and fellows using criteria established by former President Kennedy's Council on Youth Fitness in July of 1961.

The spirit of the challenge and competition between BYU and Purdue form the basis for a tribute to the late President.

Scheduled for men and coeds are pullups, situps, a shuttle run, standing broad jump, a fifty-yard dash, a softball throw for distance and a 600 yard run-walk.

David Geddes and Cynthia Hirat of the Physical Education Dept. will act as advisers.

Varsity athletes and physical education majors will not be allowed to participate.

ASKED IF HE was speaking for President Chiari, Velarde said he was only "informally" citing "some of the basic points" at issue between the two governments. He said Chiari had passed these to Thomas C. Mann, U. S. Assistant Secretary of State, here at the head of a special mission by President Johnson last week to investigate the violence.

Velarde did not elaborate on how much land Panama would like shaved off the present 10-mile width of the canal zone. "When it was first built, perhaps it was necessary to have five miles on either side of the canal," he said. "But today the canal zone's defense is carried out from Florida bases, yet the (10-mile) space is retained."

ASKED TO DETAIL what kind of "revision" Panama sought of the zone treaty, Velarde said "there is no single condition. Over the years Panama has expanded a series of demands which cover the social, economic and sovereignty aspects."

Panelists Scott Tyler, University of Colorado, Edwin J. Butterworth, BYU, Bruce Olsen, BYU and J. R. Alfred, discuss University Relations and student publications at the AAC, ACPRA conference now being held on campus.

Right To Make Mistakes Kept For Student Papers

The place of the student newspaper in university public relations was discussed by a panel of public relations and alumni executives Monday.

Bruce Olsen, Universe Editor, represented student editors and expressed a need for communications on campus as well as a need for students to be able to express their opinions.

STUDENT NEWSPAPERS need to tell the facts, not be the "wonderful" as in the University Public Relations does, he said.

Scott Tyler, from the University of Colorado, discussed the freedom student editors should be allowed.

PANEL MODERATOR, Edwin J. Butterworth of the BYU News Bureau agreed with Mr. Tyler that student editors should be given the right to make mistakes "within limits."

J. R. ALLRED FROM Utah State University said that the student newspaper should be used to publicize the university. "The students at Utah State, however, resent the idea of being used as a political organ," Mr. Allred said.

Bruce Olsen countered the remark.

At BYU the student paper is concerned with serving the university community—faculty and administration, as well as students, he said.

IN OTHER ACTION at the three day public relations conference, executives were warned against old-fashioned methods of communicating with the public.

Dr. Harold Mendelsohn, director of research, University of Denver, told the delegates the campaign method of informing the public is no longer entirely valid.

In Monday Night Reception...

Democrat Senator Frank Moss Defends Government Spending

"Many countries around the world have followed our pattern of government intervention," he said. "Few, if any, have followed the Soviets," said Frank E. Moss, U. S. Senator from Utah.

He spoke at the Monday night convention of the Young Republicans. "After World War II, which featured a re-election for him and his Roseanne Tueler, first runner-up to Miss America and Junior Class vice-president," said the group.

"This year you can see the best ever for America," claimed Senator Moss. He predicted that this Congress would adopt the tax cut, relieving the "drag of heavy taxes."

"Many would have us believe our government is too big," he said. "But it's a big country."

THE MONEY spent by the government has increased by the same proportion as the population, no control is stated. And if all the so-called welfare programs were completely cut, it would only reduce the budget by about 5 percent.

He outlined the concept expressed by Abraham Lincoln saying that it is the business of the government to do for the people what they cannot do for themselves."

The Democrat Senator will

Elder Henry Taylor, Council Assistant, Assembly Speaker

Elder Henry D. Taylor, Assistant to the Council of the Twelve of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will address the devotional assembly Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

Elder Taylor served as president of Sharon and East Sharon Stake and was also chairman of the Central Utah Region and the Mt. Timpanogos Region of the Church Welfare Plan.

He served as presiding officer of the Council of the Twelve for three years and prior to the acceptance of his present position he was associated with the family-established mercantile business of Dixon-Taylor-Russell Home Furnishers in Utah County.

On Your Way Out?

It will always be difficult for you to evaluate yourself objectively . . . especially if you are riddled with problems. Often the dawning of these problems—financial, social, physical, spiritual, or mental—causes a student to feel unable to cope with the pressures of university life. And perhaps unaware of the growth which can accrue to him through a mature self-appraisal and solving of his own problems, he packs his bags and withdraws from school.

Often the student who leaves school is untruthful to himself. Perhaps he tells himself that lack of finances is his reason for not remaining in school. But if a student truly wished to stay in school, he knows there are means by which he may obtain the necessary funds.

PROVIDED ON OUR CAMPUS is perhaps one of the most complete web of persons that truly cares and feels responsible for others; professional counselors, advisers, bishops or by the hundreds.

It is highly recommended that every student see his adviser twice a semester. You may find that he may say you a semester of school by directing you properly towards your graduation.

BUT BEFORE ANY student leaves this campus, he owes it to himself to counsel with those qualified to give him direction: professional Counseling Service for extreme emotional problems, advisers for scholastic queries, and the bishop or one of his representatives for spiritual guidance. Tutoring is provided without charge by many service organizations and student class organizations.

Hope is greater than wealth. Education is more valuable than wealth.

Brigham Young University is an institution of hope. Many young men and women who attend this university bring their troubles with them. This is "The Miracle Institution" because there are found on this campus builders of true men and women.

Before you leave, see a Builder.

Who Preferred Him?

There can be no doubt that (For whom the bell tolls) BYU girls are fascinating creatures. The Student Center proves so. It is sometimes conjectured that girls emotionally use their intelligence while at other times it is used to manipulate us men into their moods. We thought perhaps that an environment of "expectation" would be most conducive to solving this enigma.

This is what we heard at the table downstairs in the Clark Student Center when the girls started prancing around the Preference Bell.

"I can't believe it. He's in Montana. Oh, well."

If he's in Europe, don't send it." "Slow do you spell it?" (How should I know?)

"Can I find out who preferred him?" (Jealousy)

"Don't worry about other people—good grief—worry about yourself." (Gee ahead—be self-centered) said a pretty girl with jet black hair.

One girl was heard to say, "Pull it, Pull it. Right now!"

"Oh, I know him, he was president of my high school." (Social climber)

"What fun hub?"

"Oh, I wish we had a place to sit down . . ."

A silence which always can be a problem was terribly short this way. "I know a real sharp missionary, but he may be too short." (I hope she means a returned missionary.)

"If they don't go to school here, then what?"

"She can't decide which one she wants to go with; she's crazy." (Believe me, boys have the same problem.)

"Oh boy, Oh boy, Oh boy!" She was one of those girls with sophisticated hair.

"But I don't even know him."

Y Students Can Stay In School

"There's no program more important than this," said President Ernest L. Wilkinson.

He was speaking of the advisement program where each student is provided with a faculty adviser who has been "on the scene" for years and years—but emphasis was put on it only one and a half years ago.

HARVEY L. TAYLOR, now acting Chancellor of the Unified Church System and director of the program, said, "This is 60 percent of our university students and 60 percent of our students are away from home. About 5000 students are having their first college experience and they need advisement."

This need is intensified now that the semester is ending and students will be appraising the old semester's achievement and planning next semester's activities.

THE SYSTEM is set up so that all the deans of BYU's colleges sit on the advisement committee and are completely responsible for the program in their colleges.

The way the program works varies from college to college. The College of Physical and Engineering Sciences has their students meet with advisers once a month. Ruth M. Rigs, advisement coordinator in the college, said this was more convenient for the advisors because they are then able to give more specialized assistance.

The College of Humanities provides more continuity in its program by leaving a student with the same person as long as he studies at the University.

MRS. RIGGS emphasized the "person-to-person" contact an advisor provides. Dr. Taylor gave credit for keeping "many students in school that would have dropped out otherwise."

He particularly mentioned students with health problems that doctors didn't know how to correct. Several of the medical problems are referred to the professional Counseling Service maintained by the University.

Students with problems can stay in school," emphasized Dr. Taylor. "They just need to know where to go for help."

Two-Year Programs Offered By BYU Technical Institute

Are you finding it hard to stay in school because of finances or lack of time to complete a four-year college program?

Have you considered completing a two-year college program or didn't you know one existed at BYU?

She tore the pages from the clipboard and ripped them into shreds.

If my memory serves me correctly, this was the same girl who tactfully and rhetorically said, "I'll kill her!"

She wrote that you to whom lengths girls will go to impress their "would be dates." I quote from one sweet young thing who thinks she knows a little male psychology: "I'm going to impress her write it. Who writes that she writes that rest pretty way? Wish her luck better yet, we hope she's right."

Seriously, all these comments are literal transcripts. Girls will be girls, especially BYU girls.

Y Art Librarian's Prelude Ready For Publication

Robert Manookin, humanities and arts librarian in the Clark Library has had his prelude to "How Gentle God's Command" accepted for publication by the German Organist.

His prelude was submitted to a contest sponsored by the California Organist, a group which publishes organ music monthly to subscribers. Mr. Manookin was one of two possibilities in the contest, but since his other piece was for the Mormon hymn, "Lord of Hosts," it could not be used.

Mr. Manookin's "Hymn Prelude on How Gentle God's Command" was changed to "How Gentle Prelude on Dennis" because most Protestants recognize the hymn by the name "Dennis." Mr. Manookin will get 10 percent of the proceeds from the sale.

Mr. Manookin graduated from BYU in 1956 with a B.A. degree in music theory. He obtained his Master's Degree from the University of Illinois in 1959, and since then has been connected with BYU.

This native Utah composer has written many other songs besides the one being published.

DAILY UNIVERSE Publishers will share $121,200— the highest dividend ever paid in their company's history. This is 15% higher ($16.1 million more) than Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company's dividend payable possibly due to continued strong growth plus another actual dividend increase, the 11th in 12 years!

A typical effect of this increase is easily illustrated. Take the case of a man who purchased $10,000 NML straight life policy in 1952 at age 30. If he had died at the dividend scale, he could have expected a $4 dividend of $75.40. However, with the 11 scale increases, he will actually receive a dividend of $181.00—a 145% increase or 54.5% over his anticipated return.

These factors are largely responsible for this outstanding performance. Premiums and interest earnings (2) continue low operating costs and (3) record low mortality experience.

Home Sweet Home...

by Stan Hodge, Asst. Sports' Editor

What's happened to the old cage sport? Oh, yes, you still call it basketball, but the game you hear the timers talking about in the barbershops has been gone.

In those days the game was played with the players in mind. What old timer, aged fifty or more, doesn't remember playing in the ancient crackerbox gymnasium above the Legion Hall which featured the newest thing in central heating? That coal stove in the middle of the court was tough for anyone to get around when he had the ball but it was even rougher on defense.

The rules of those games were nothing close to the fury marks hit today and more often approximated something like 20-21. It wasn't that these men were rakers, but rather the emphasis was on the defense what with the coal stoves, loose planks, irregular lboards, low rafters and court-edge retaining walls. In a game featuring two top notch teams, it was not unusual for one team to win by a score of 0-20. In one as related to me, the score was 0-20 going into the fourth minutes of play when the home team broke game wide open to win 4-0.

Again, what old timer doesn't remember visiting a rival community and accidentally hacking too close to the crowd only to be reminded, rather pointedly, by a jabbing hatpin that he was not playing at home?

In those days officials allowed a little more body contact than is condoned in today's game. One old timer who did his hoop shooting around the turn of the century related the following incident. Prior to the beginning of a tilt between arch-rivals home coach instructed him to concentrate on getting the visitor's star off the court. As the opening of goals came, he started and carried out his coach's directions, popping the star in the nose!

The referee approached the villain and warned, "If I do that again Dick, I'll have to call a foul on you." Basketball floors are pretty well standardized now, if many of the old hazards of the game have been noved. Yet, cries of "homer" are still raised to the each winter.

I don't think the reason lies in the fact that some fans are unfriendly, or that officials unconsciously slant their calls, or that rules are interpreted differently by different teams, or that a team can make much more better than another. But each of these factors does its part, and there is as big as in days of yore: Basketball is still interested with homecourtism. And, like death and taxes, probably always will be.

A sports publication a few years ago gave the home from a 6-12 point advantage on its own court. They went on to list the following causes which will stay even after interplanetary tournaments have been commonplace:

1. Basketball can be lightning fast that making correct call at all times is a virtual impossibility.
2. The fans, unlike their football counterparts, are to the playing area and think they can see everything.
3. The rules, unlike those in football, are sufficiently simple as to make every fan an automatic authority and rule.
4. The fans, individually and collectively, comprise of the most rabid, uncompromising bunch of human beings on earth, and this situation is compounded by game's breakneck, high-scoring pace.

Physical Education Dept. To Present Annual Demonstration, P.E. Activities

The BYU College of Physical Education will present the annual "Demonstration of Physical Education Activities" Jan. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fieldhouse, according to Richard Jones, chairman.

The program will be two hours long and everyone is invited. There will be no admission charge. Jones said.

ALMOST every faction of physical education at BYU will be represented including demonstration of the skills of the faculty, gymnasts, and dancers.

Dr. Alma Heston, instructor in dance and recreation will lead the audience in some exercises to illustrate that physical fitness should be stressed for everyone. Along this same line, women students who have been chosen from the women's activity fitness classes will be doing a routine with jump ropes.

THE PHYSICAL Education Department will also demonstrate the effects of poor posture, knee injuries, back injuries and other injuries or improper structural condition. Faculty members and teachers of this class will lead the class in some demonstrations.

There will be dance demonstrations performed by the BYU International Folk Dancers, and the BYU Orchestra dance group. Also participating in the dancing will be students from the various physical education dance classes.

IN THE MEN'S department, Coach Blauer Bangerter will demonstrate how an obstacle course can be used to determine a man's general athletic ability. Members of the BYU volleyball team and some badminton experts will demonstrate some warm-up drills and some scoring plays.

The main event on the agenda will be the appearance of the varsity and women's gymnastics teams. Appearing for the women's team will be Kathy Atkinson, Diana Wright and Margaret Greenwood. They will perform exercises on the uneven parallel bars.

The tennis team will perform in four events, free exercise, trampoline, parallel bars and the Sil-Bar.

DAVE WATERS, Jim Young, Jay Martham, Ron Newson, Perry Guinn and others will work in the free exercise area.

Chuck Roots, Jerry Solberg, Lynn Leigh and Richard Sorenson who are a WAC champ, will perform on the trampoline and do a clown act on the trampoline.

Lee Talks To Group

Mayor J. Bracken Lee of Salt Lake City will be the speaker at the Initiation meeting of Sigma Alpha Honor Political Science Fraternity Thursday at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held in the home of Dr. Stewart L. Grow, 1655 North Fine.

Mayor Lee has served eight years as governor of Utah. He has twice been a candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1956 and 1958, and has been mayor of Price, Utah.

His topic will be centered around his political philosophy and the recent election.

Students wishing to join Pi Sigma Alpha must be either sophomores with a 2.5 grade point average or seniors with 2.8 or more with a 3.1. Ten or more semester hours of political science including at least one 300 series course must have been completed with a B average.

Application must be made in the Political Science Office, 358 McKay Hall, by Wednesday.

Talent Bureau Extends Invite

Men interested in working with the Program Bureau are invited to an openhouse sponsored by the M.-C. Directors staff of the Program Bureau. The event will take place Wednesday, Jan. 16, at 7 p.m. in the South Orient at the home of faculty advisor Norm Nielsen.

Transportation will be available for those meeting in the lobby of the South Orient Bldg. at 6:30 p.m. The openhouse will consist of entertainment, informal discussion, explanation of the organization and its duties and refreshments. Applications will also be distributed at the reception.

The M.-C. Directors staff work as part of the Program Bureau setting up programs, performing during the year. Corresponding touring with the shows and participating in the social activities of the organization.

Men in any academic level are eligible for membership.

'Apple Tales' Skits Entries Due Soon

The first annual "Sights-O-Frantic" will be presented Feb. 21 by the Culture Committee. The entries will have the theme of "The Apple Tales."

All residence halls and campus organizations are invited to participate in original skits. Any dramatic offering, musical, tragedy, comedy, or acceptance of the central theme counts around the idea of an apple.

Deadline for entries is Jan. 24. Preliminary judging will eliminate entries to the finalists which will perform in competition Feb. 21.

Acts will be judged on originality, adherence to theme, performance, scenery, costuming, and active participation. Each act will have a time limit of ten minutes.

Judges will be selected from persons prominent in creative fields, yet not connected with the contest. Trophies will be awarded to the winners in each different category.

Chairman John Stoe has described "Sights-O-Frantic" as "a songfest using skills instead." He is assisted by committee members Bob Groves, Steve Nuttall, Judy Lloyd, Carolyn Croxton, Luana Turley, Ann Bunker, Taiva Johnson and Nancy Culmore.

J. Bracken Lee . . . Salt Lake City's Mayor will speak at Y.
